

ABSTRACT

Compositions and methods for diagnosing, preventing, and treating cancers. In one embodiment, genes differentially expressed in colon, lung, breast and prostate cancer tissues relative to corresponding cancer-free tissues are identified. These genes or their products can be used as markers for the detection of respective cancers. Modulators of these genes or their products can be used for the treatment or prevention of respective cancers.